The Forth Road Bridge was opened in 1964 and now carries over 24 million vehicles per annum. Assessments of the suspended structure and the truss end connections have identified that several of the key elements forming these connections are overstressed. A feasibility study has been undertaken and a preferred option identified to strengthen the existing truss end link connection. The Forth Estuary Transport Authority (FETA) wishes to appoint a suitably experienced consulting engineer to undertake the detailed design of the new truss end connections. The successful candidate will also be responsible for the preparation of tender documentation and the supervision of the works on site.
